Rules of Civility for the 21st Century from Cub and Boy Scouts across America

For the 200th anniversary of George Washington's death (December, 1999), American Scouts were challenged to reflect upon the Rules of Civility a young George Washington copied out before he left for the frontier, and come up with their own rules to live by for the future. 200 Scout rules out of thousands submitted by four million Scouts are placed next to Washington's original 101 precepts. A history of Rules of Civility for young gentlemen going back to the 16th century is included. A final Civility Workshop section investigates modern threats to civility and challenges the reader to come up with his/her rules of civility for the 21st century.
