National security concerns have arisen in surprising places, and today's national security climate involves a unique and dangerous situation for not only the federal government, but private entities as well. Protecting the Homeland: Balancing National Security and Individual Privacy Interests provides in-depth analysis of the serious national security threats that jeopardize our nation's future, the volatile intersection of political crime and national security, and a discussion of the Government's role in cyber threat "vulnerability mitigation" i.e., strengthening our cyber defenses to reduce the nation's vulnerability to cyber attack and cyber espionage.

The CIA, FBI, NSA, and DHS, among others, have long served the nation as commonly known components of the national security apparatus. These authors discuss these components, as well as the broader Intelligence Community that leverage numerous threat assessment and deterrence tools in the defense of national security while also seeking to maintain the delicate balance between protecting our nation's security interests with an individual's and a society's constitutional rights and liberties.

Inside the Minds provides readers with proven business and legal intelligence from leading C-Level executives and lawyers. Each chapter offers thought leadership and expert analysis on an industry, profession, or topic, providing a future-oriented perspective and proven strategies for success. Each author has been selected based on their experience and C-Level standing within the business and legal communities.
